Leadership Message

We’re excited to share an update reporting our tremendous growth and progress for the Jewish Historical Society of Greater Washington this year, as we build on our past and grow into our future — as the Lillian & Albert Small Capital Jewish Museum! 2018 was truly a year of transformation for us as we:

- Selected our museum name and logo — with the same heart behind our work
- Completed our strategic plan to guide our work as we develop the new museum, exhibitions and programs
- Moved our interim offices to 1319 F Street NW
- Hired three critical professional staff
- Completed architectural design with architect SmithGroup, and obtained required zoning, historic preservation and ANC approvals
- Began designing our exhibitions and public spaces with world-class team of Evidence Design and Potion
- Hosted 45 programs and walking tours for 2,400 adults and students
- Partnered with 60 synagogues, schools, and cultural organizations
- Acquired new collections and oral histories to support our exhibition plans; answered more than 40 research requests
- Prepared for the third and final move of the historic 1876 synagogue to the site of the new museum at the corner of Third & F Streets
- Voted to change the official name of the organization to the Lillian & Albert Small Capital Jewish Museum, honoring the Small family’s long-term support and lead gift for the new museum!

Join us at this exciting moment by supporting the Capital Jewish Museum. Take a look inside these pages to see the museum plans and other highlights from 2018!

The new Capital Jewish Museum will connect families and diverse communities, inspire reflection about the relevance of history to today, and encourage visitors to explore their role in making change. Given our nation’s current political and social climate, the mission and message of the Capital Jewish Museum have never been so important.

MUSEUM FEATURES

- New site at 3rd & F Streets, NW
- Historic 1876 synagogue
- 25,000 square-foot new facility across 4 floors
- Core and changing exhibition galleries
- Program and event spaces
- Community lab
- Multi-story, light-filled lobby
- Roof terrace
A Place for Every Generation

The museum will engage multi-generational families, school groups and tourists from across the country and around the world — inspiring them to see themselves within the complex cultural fabric of Washington, and to explore their role in Tikkun Olam, repairing the world.

- The greater Washington area hosts the third-largest Jewish community in the country (at more than 300,000) and welcomes 22 million visitors each year.

- For regional Jewish families, many unaffiliated with synagogues, the museum will serve as an “in-between” gathering space to connect with Jewish life and culture.

- For tourist audiences, the museum will promote diverse perspectives, combat antisemitism and serve as a safe space for challenging conversations.

The Museum will be the key cultural institution in Capitol Crossing, a new $1.3 billion, mixed-use development of commercial offices, residences, a hotel, cafes, restaurants, and retail facilities.
Museum Highlights

We are thrilled to be working with SmithGroup to design the museum. In 2018, we completed architectural design and engineering, and submitted for our building permits. SmithGroup is one of the largest architecture, engineering, and planning firms in the country, specializing in museum design. Relevant work includes: International Spy Museum, Museum of the Bible, Smithsonian National Museum of the American Indian, White House Visitor Center, U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum’s Collections and Conservation Center.

LOBBY

Visitors will immediately feel welcomed by this airy, light-filled space, as they take in a close-up view of the historic synagogue and the bridge connecting it to our new building.

LOBBY FEATURES

- 1,500 square feet
- Gathering space for museum visitor orientation
- Starting point for neighborhood walking tours
- Rentals for simchas and meetings
- Table seating for 100–125 people
MULTI-PURPOSE AUDITORIUM

Large windows look out onto F Street, filling the room with light and creating a comfortable environment for learning. During the day, with the retractable walls hidden away, visitors will experience a seamless connection into the lobby, inviting a bookstore-like atmosphere for reading, family lunches and casual conversation. Evening and weekend programming here includes school demonstrations and workshops, exhibition openings, book talks by scholars, concerts and theatrical performances, film screenings and receptions for diplomatic delegations.

AUDITORIUM FEATURES

- 1,250 square feet
- Retractable walls open into the lobby
- Large windows overlooking historic synagogue ark
- Seats 80–100 people theater-style
Our Historic Synagogue

In early 2019, our historic synagogue will move from its perch in the middle of 3rd Street NW to its final location at 3rd and F Street.

SANCTUARY

With a chandelier and wall sconces providing the room’s original warm, flickering glow, visitors will be transported back to 1876. The sanctuary will be restored to its original appearance, and feature dramatic multimedia storytelling.

LOWER SYNAGOGUE GALLERY

This gallery explores the origins of the Jewish community in D.C. through the synagogue building visitors are standing in.

FEATURES

• Accessible off museum lobby and via elevator and bridge
• Event space for 100 seated in sanctuary
Core Exhibition Gallery

After reviewing proposals from six world-class museum exhibition design teams, we began work this year in partnership with the exhibition designers Evidence Design and media planners Potion Design to develop the exhibitions, wayfinding, and public space theming for the museum. Based in New York, Evidence and Potion are innovative planners and designers that have developed stunning, transformative exhibitions around the world.

KEY STORIES

We will emphasize Washington themes of negotiation, debate, activism, and diplomacy, and explore how change is made in communities as well as on the Hill, the National Mall, and Embassy Row. Through engaging artifacts, images, multimedia and hands-on activities, visitors will explore the city’s story through a Jewish lens.

FEATURES

- Largest exhibition gallery at 4,000 square feet
- Key educational experience for adults and students
- Atrium viewing window

“The museum will be a beacon to invite all citizens to participate in meaningful dialogue and civic engagement. This project could not be more timely and more necessary.”

—Evidence Design
Community Lab

The Community Lab will provide the space, materials and provocations for group explorations around social action and identity. Experiences will be personal, engaging and interactive, focusing on issues that matter to our visitors.

SAMPLE ACTIVITIES

- Bar and Bat Mitzvah Social Action Club
- Early childhood community art projects
- Family story-making activities and oral histories
- Collections exploration

FEATURES

- 1,100 square feet
- Programming for families with children 7 to 17
- Appeals to region’s growing family demographic
Special Exhibition Gallery

BROAD CULTURAL OFFERINGS

Rotating exhibitions will explore additional topics and encourage return visits to the museum.

TRAVELING EXHIBITIONS

• Host exhibits that currently bypass D.C. due to the lack of a suitable venue
• Feature Jewish culture and heritage in art, sports, literature and community
• Draw from other museums in the U.S., Israel and around the world

STAFF-CURATED EXHIBITIONS

• Address provocative, newsworthy themes of local, national and international importance
• Explore the Jewish community’s relationships with other cultural communities
• Examples might include D.C. Home Rule, the changing nature of Jewish and African American relationships, Jewish advocacy and attitudes toward Israel.

FEATURES

• 3,400 square feet
• Responsive windows can be adjusted for light-sensitive artifacts
• Adjacent exhibition preparation space

Programming

This year our key programming focused on negotiating challenging conversations. Our Jewish American Heritage Month program at the National Archives highlighted the experience of activists involved in desegregating Glen Echo Park in 1960. Washington powerhouse Ambassador Stuart Eizenstat spoke to Guardian members about how his Jewish identity influenced his White House and diplomatic career. We partnered with the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society and the DC Minyan to provide aid to asylum seekers, and we refined our popular walking tours to provide greater context of the surrounding communities.

Program Partners

We worked with the following organizations on program development in 2018:

- 1882 Foundation
- 1968/2018 DC Collaborative
- Adas Israel Congregation
- B’nai Israel Congregation
- Chinese Community Church
- Congregation Beth El of Montgomery County
- Council of American Jewish Museums
- Cultural Tourism DC
- DC Minyan
- GatherDC
- HIAS
- Hill Havurah
- Historical Society of Washington, D.C.
- Holy Rosary Church | Casa Italiana
- InterFaith Conference of Metropolitan Washington
- John Wesley AME Zion
- Moishe House – Capitol Hill
- National Archives
- National Building Museum
- Operation Understanding DC
- Religious Action Center of Reform Judaism
- Sixth & I Historic Synagogue
- Tifereth Israel Congregation’s “Millennials Plus”
- Temple Rodef Shalom
- The Edlavitch DCJCC Jewish Community Center
- Washington Jewish Film Festival
- The Jewish Federation of Greater Washington
- Tikkun Olam Women’s Foundation

2018 Tours & Speakers Bureau

- Alexandria Public Library
- American University Department of History
- Beth El Hebrew Congregation

Youth Programs

- Beth Chai
- B’nai Tzedek
- Brauser Maimonides Academy (Florida)
- Congregation Beth El of Montgomery County
- Charles E. Smith Jewish Day School
- Gesher Jewish Day School
- National Building Museum’s teen program, “Investigating Where We Live”
- Rockwern Academy (Ohio)
- Temple B’nai Shalom
- Temple Micah
- Temple Shalom
- URJ Camp Harlam
- Washington Hebrew Congregation
Collections

Collections are at the heart of our programs and exhibition plans. This year, we conducted oral histories of Washingtonians with exciting and diverse stories to share — including Ambassador Alfred Moses (shown here), Norma Lee and Morton Funger, and activist Michael Tabor. We also continued collecting objects that will help us tell compelling stories about Jewish Washington in the new museum. Our favorite acquisition this year was this hand-knit collar worn on the bench by Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg.

Campaign Update

The Campaign to Build a Jewish Museum for the Nation’s Capital gained significant momentum during 2018. We are now well over halfway to our capital goal of $34 million! Thanks to all of our wonderful supporters who have helped us reach this incredible milestone. We look forward to others joining this extraordinary effort to build the Lillian & Albert Small Capital Jewish Museum.

The National Endowment for the Humanities awarded the Capital Jewish Museum a hyper-competitive Infrastructure and Capacity-Building Challenge Grant of $250,000. We must match the award 3:1 with $750,000 in gifts, an added incentive to amplify the impact of gifts to our campaign. The NEH grant, along with other recent major gifts, have helped push us over the $23 million mark!

For more information about the Capital Campaign, contact any of our campaign committee members or Director of Development Michelle Malet at (202) 290-2593 or MMalet@CapitalJewishMuseum.org.

Meet the Staff

Kara Blond, Executive Director
Building a new museum from the ground up has been an acrobatic, fast-paced adventure — particularly after 15 years at the behemoth Smithsonian. I’m excited by the chance to experiment, to reinvent and reimagine, to build connections between people, across communities and through time. An avid skier and swimmer, I have two children who must therefore endure interminable ski and swim lessons.

Jaclyn Kimball, Program Associate
As a fairly new member of the staff, I am most excited about the opportunity to participate in the creation of a new museum – it’s such an extremely unique and inspirational task for someone at my current career level. Fun Fact: My dad played for the Redskins, which is why I’m such a big fan. And even though I haven’t lived there for about 13 years, I am still New England girl at heart. (Go Sox! World Series Champs!)

Rebekah Sobel, PhD, Director of Interpretation
After a decade at the US Holocaust Memorial Museum focused on audience research, I am excited to apply what I’ve learned as we plan the new Capital Jewish Museum. When I am not reading old issues of The Record, I can be found chasing two kiddos through any other museum in town. I enjoy living on Capitol Hill and being part of the Hill Havurah, a Jewish community not yet well researched! (at least I have not found it yet).

Samantha Abramson, Museum Educator
For me, this work has always been about the power of story to build relationships through interactions of the past — to inspire curiosity and change in the present. In my case, my passion for our historic synagogue and surrounding neighborhood literally helped me build relationships, as I met my husband while leading a walking tour — on Yom Kippur!

Michelle Malet, Director of Development
This is my dream job! I’ve worked mainly in Jewish philanthropy for the past 20 years, with a career that has included raising resources for Israel, Holocaust education, and Jewish communal needs. In my “spare” time, I’ve traveled extensively. Mongolia, South Korea, Greenland, Iceland, Peru, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, Zanzibar, Bali, and Tanzania are some of my favorite destinations.

Wendy Turman, Deputy Director
I believe in history. I love the sound and feel of the floorboards creaking beneath my feet in our historic synagogue, discovering an obscure reference in our archives that helps a researcher in their work, and seeing the light in a visitor’s eyes when they gain a new understanding of the world from historic content that we have shared. After 18 years here in several different roles, my passion for our content and its impact continues to deepen.
